Foreword from Bizlink Trade Expo Convener

Foreword

The Bizlink Trade Expo (BTEXPO) Naivasha Edition was conceived as a strategic platform to connect businesses, stimulate trade, and foster meaningful partnerships that drive sustainable economic growth within Nakuru County and beyond. This edition brought together entrepreneurs, corporates, innovators, policymakers, and investors under one roof, reaffirming the value of collaboration in unlocking local and regional opportunities.

The presence and participation of the County Government of Nakuru, led by the CECM for Lands, Physical Planning, Housing & Urban Development, Hon. John Kihagi, greatly enriched the event. His engagement with exhibitors and appreciation of the diversity and quality of businesses showcased underscored the county's commitment to supporting enterprise development and creating an enabling environment for growth.

Organized by Bizlink Ads & Ramcan, the expo reflects the power of private-sector leadership working alongside government and stakeholders to promote trade, innovation, and inclusive economic development. BTEXPO Naivasha stands as a testament to what can be achieved through shared vision and strategic partnerships.

Welcome to Naivasha

Editorial,

The Bizlink Trade Expo (BTEXPO) Naivasha Edition emerged as a timely and relevant platform for advancing trade, innovation, and enterprise development in Nakuru County. At a moment when businesses are seeking visibility, partnerships, and market access, BTEXPO provided more than exhibition space it created connection, conversation, and confidence.

Organized by Bizlink Ads & Ramcan, the expo showcased a deliberate commitment to supporting local enterprise while attracting broader commercial interest. The diversity of exhibitors highlighted not only products and services, but also the ambition, resilience, and adaptability of entrepreneurs operating within the region.

The participation of the County Government of Nakuru reinforced the strategic importance of public-private collaboration. The engagement of Hon. John Kihagi, CECM for Lands, Physical Planning, Housing & Urban Development, signalled institutional confidence in enterprise as a driver of inclusive growth and long-term development.

BTEXPO Naivasha demonstrated that thoughtfully executed trade expos can function as economic catalysts. They provide visibility to emerging businesses, encourage knowledge exchange, and foster networks that extend well beyond the event itself. The conversations initiated and partnerships formed are expected to translate into tangible growth outcomes.

As Bizlink Trade Expo continues to evolve, its future lies in deepening impact expanding strategic content, strengthening investor engagement, and anchoring itself as a consistent platform for regional enterprise development. The Naivasha Edition stands as both a milestone achieved and a foundation upon which greater ambitions can be built.

Governor of Nakuru County

BIZLINK TRADE EXPO (BTEXPO) Buffalo Mall, Naivasha

Read on behalf of Her Excellency, the Governor of Nakuru County, by the Naivasha Sub-County Administrator, Elizabeth Wangui

Distinguished guests, esteemed exhibitors, business leaders, innovators, partners, and all visitors gathered here today,

I convey warm greetings from Her Excellency, the Governor of Nakuru County, and extend her sincere appreciation to the organizers of the Bizlink Trade Expo 2025 for convening this important platform for trade, innovation, and enterprise development.

The theme of this year's Expo, "Connecting Ideas, Business, and Opportunities," speaks directly to the development agenda of Nakuru County. Sustainable economic growth is built on collaboration between government and the private sector, between innovators and investors, and between local enterprises and regional markets.

The Bizlink Trade Expo continues to establish itself as a valuable trade showcase within the region, bringing together small and medium enterprises, corporate institutions, manufacturers, service providers, creatives, start-ups, and investors. This convergence reflects our shared commitment to strengthening value chains, expanding market access, and driving inclusive economic growth.

The County Government of Nakuru remains fully committed to creating a conducive environment for business growth. Through infrastructure development, policy support for SMEs, access to markets, and promotion of Naivasha as a strategic hub for trade, tourism, and investment, we continue to position the county as a competitive destination for enterprise.

Platforms such as BTEXPO complement government efforts by translating policy into practical opportunity where networks are built, partnerships are forged, and enterprises gain visibility.

Her Excellency applauds all exhibitors for their innovation, resilience, and dedication, and appreciates the organizers for providing a platform that amplifies local and regional businesses.

To consumers and visitors, your engagement and support for participating businesses is a direct investment in the economic growth of Nakuru County.

As this year's Bizlink Trade Expo officially gets underway, Her Excellency encourages all participants to fully utilize this platform to explore partnerships, exchange ideas, and unlock new opportunities for growth.

On behalf of the County Government of Nakuru, I wish you a successful, impactful, and rewarding Bizlink Trade Expo (BTEXPO) 2025.

Thank you.

CECM Message | Trade, Tourism & Marketing

Hon. Stephen Kuria Muiruri
CECM Trade Industry
Marketing and Tourism

The Bizlink Trade Expo (BTEXPO) 2025 provided an important platform for enterprises, innovators, and institutions to connect, showcase, and explore opportunities for growth within Nakuru County and beyond. The Expo demonstrated the power of collaboration in advancing enterprise development, market access, and innovation across diverse sectors of our economy.

As the Department responsible for Trade, Tourism and Marketing, we recognize the critical role that such platforms play in strengthening Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs), promoting value addition, and enhancing competitiveness. BTEXPO offered businesses an opportunity not only to display their products and services, but also to engage directly with consumers, investors, policymakers, and strategic partners.

Naivasha continues to emerge as a strategic hub for Trade, Tourism, Conferencing, and Investment. Its location, infrastructure, and growing business ecosystem position it as a key driver of Nakuru County's economic growth. Hosting BTEXPO in Naivasha reinforces our commitment to decentralizing opportunities and ensuring that enterprise growth is inclusive and regionally balanced.

The Expo also highlighted the importance of Innovation, Branding, and Market Readiness in today's business environment. Exhibitors demonstrated resilience, creativity, and adaptability qualities that are essential for enterprises seeking to scale and compete in regional and national markets.

The Department of Trade, Tourism and Marketing remains committed to working closely with the private sector, development partners, and business support institutions to create an enabling environment for enterprise growth. Through policy support, infrastructure development, market linkages, and promotion of local products and destinations, we continue to position Nakuru County as a preferred destination for business and investment.

I commend the organizers of the Bizlink Trade Expo for delivering a well-coordinated and impactful event, and I applaud all exhibitors and sponsors for their participation and contribution to its success. Your engagement is a clear demonstration of confidence in the potential of our county's business landscape.

As we reflect on the outcomes of BTEXPO 2025, I encourage all stakeholders to build on the connections made, pursue the opportunities identified, and continue collaborating towards sustainable economic growth and job creation.

I wish all exhibitors and partners continued success as they expand their enterprises and strengthen their market presence.

CECM Message | Lands, Physical Planning & Urban Development

Hon. John Karanja Kihagi
CECM Lands Housing
Physical Planning

The successful conclusion of the Bizlink Trade Expo (BTEXPO) 2025 in Naivasha is a strong reflection of the county's growing enterprise ecosystem and the increasing demand for structured, sustainable business growth.

From a land and physical planning perspective, platforms such as BTEXPO highlight a critical truth: enterprise development must be supported by deliberate planning, secure land tenure, and well-designed urban and industrial spaces. As businesses grow, they require certainty—clear land use Frameworks, Accessible Infrastructure, and Environments that support long-term investment.

Naivasha continues to experience rapid economic expansion driven by Trade, Tourism, Manufacturing, Logistics, and Real Estate Development. This growth presents both opportunity and responsibility. The Department of Lands remains committed to ensuring that development is orderly, compliant, and aligned with approved physical plans to protect investors, communities, and the long-term sustainability of the region.

The County Government of Nakuru continues to prioritize planning initiatives that unlock land for productive use, support industrial and commercial development, and enhance investment confidence. Through land administration reforms, physical planning, and collaboration with other departments, we are working to ensure that business growth is supported by reliable spatial frameworks.

I commend the organizers of BTEXPO for selecting Naivasha as the host location and for providing a platform that brings together enterprise, innovation, and investment. I also commend exhibitors and sponsors whose participation demonstrates confidence in Nakuru County as a destination for business expansion.

As we move forward from this Expo, I encourage investors and entrepreneurs to engage with the county planning and lands offices early in their development journeys to ensure compliance, efficiency, and sustainability.

I congratulate all stakeholders on a successful Bizlink Trade Expo 2025 and reaffirm the County Government's commitment to planned growth that supports enterprise, job creation, and long-term prosperity.

CONSERVANCY

A Model of Conservation, Heritage, and Sustainable Enterprise

Soyambu Conservancy, situated within Kenya's Great Rift Valley between Nakuru and Gilgil in Nakuru County, holds ecological significance. It plays a pivotal role in safeguarding wildlife, supporting local livelihoods, and promoting sustainable conservation-driven enterprise. The Conservancy is internationally recognized for its ecological importance, rich heritage, and progressive approach to land management.

An integral component of the larger Rift Valley lakes ecosystem, Soyambu contributes substantially to biodiversity conservation at both national and global scales. Notably, Lake Elmenteita, a National Wildlife Sanctuary, UNESCO World Heritage Site, Ramsar Site, and Important Bird Area, adjoins the Conservancy. This region serves as one of the most crucial breeding and feeding grounds for flamingos and other waterfowl within the Rift Valley. The surrounding grasslands and forests of

The surrounding grasslands and forests of Soyambu provide habitat for a diverse array of wildlife, including giraffes, zebras, gazelles, warthogs, and numerous bird species.

Founded on the principle of harmonious coexistence between humans, wildlife, and land use, substantial areas of Soyambu are dedicated to conservation efforts. Simultaneously, carefully managed agriculture and livestock farming are conducted in designated zones. This integrated model mitigates human-wildlife conflict and ensures the long-term economic sustainability of conservation initiatives.

From an economic and business standpoint, the Conservancy supports low-impact eco-tourism ventures that generate revenue while preserving the natural environment.

Exclusive lodges, guided nature walks, birdwatching experiences, and cultural tourism attract visitors seeking authentic and responsible travel. These activities foster employment opportunities and contribute to local economic development without compromising ecological integrity.

The Conservancy plays a pivotal role in research, education, and conservation partnerships. It collaborates with environmental organizations, researchers, and academic institutions to monitor wildlife, safeguard critical habitats, and promote best practices in conservation efforts. Community engagement programs further enhance conservation outcomes by engaging neighboring communities in sustainable land use and benefit-sharing initiatives.

The Conservancy serves as a prominent exemplar of conservation-driven development in Kenya. By safeguarding critical ecosystems, upholding its historical significance, and embracing sustainable enterprise, the conservancy exemplifies how environmental stewardship can generate long-term ecological, social, and economic value in the Rift Valley and beyond.

How Naivasha Is Redefining Energy-Driven Business

Naivasha has emerged as one of Kenya's most important centers for energy-driven industrial growth, positioning the town as a prime destination for business and investment. Located in Nakuru County within the Great Rift Valley, Naivasha benefits from abundant geothermal resources that have reshaped its economic landscape. At the core of this transformation is the Olkaria Geothermal Complex, Africa's largest geothermal power project, which supplies a significant share of

The availability of reliable, affordable, and renewable energy has made Naivasha highly attractive to energy-intensive industries. Manufacturing, processing, and value-addition enterprises are increasingly setting up operations in the area to take advantage of stable power supply and reduced operational costs. This has encouraged the growth of sectors such as agro-processing, packaging, building materials, light manufacturing, and cold-chain facilities that support agriculture and exports.

Energy security has also supported the development of industrial parks and special economic zones (SEZs) in and around Naivasha. These zones are designed to attract both local and international investors by offering modern infrastructure, proximity to power generation, and access to transport networks. Businesses operating within these zones benefit from improved efficiency, faster production cycles, and enhanced competitiveness in regional and global

In addition, Naivasha's energy-driven growth is closely linked to logistics and trade. The town hosts an Inland Container Depot connected to the Standard Gauge Railway (SGR), enabling efficient movement of raw materials and finished goods from the Port of Mombasa to inland markets. This integration of energy, transport, and industry has positioned Naivasha as a strategic base for distribution, warehousing, and export-oriented manufacturing.

The expansion of industrial activity has generated strong demand for supporting business services, including engineering, maintenance, transport, security, finance, and professional services. Small and medium enterprises (SMEs) play a vital role in servicing large industries, creating a dynamic business ecosystem that promotes local entrepreneurship and job creation.

Overall, Naivasha's rise as an energy-driven industrial hub reflects Kenya's broader shift toward sustainable development and industrialization. By leveraging geothermal energy to power industry, Naivasha offers businesses a unique combination of cost efficiency, sustainability, and growth potential, making it a key location for future-focused investment in Kenya.

CEO MENTAL HEALTH

The Hidden Challenge at the Top

Being a CEO is often seen as glamorous—high pay, influence, and decision-making power. But behind the boardroom doors, many CEOs face intense pressure, stress, and isolation that can take a serious toll on mental health.

The Pressure at the Top

CEOs carry the ultimate responsibility for a company's success or failure. Decisions about strategy, finances, employees, and stakeholders can be constant sources of stress, often requiring long hours, travel, and sleepless nights. The weight of accountability, combined with public scrutiny and high expectations, can increase the risk of anxiety, depression and burnout.

Isolation and Loneliness

Leadership can be lonely. Many CEOs feel they must shield their emotions from employees and colleagues, which can create emotional isolation. Over time, this distance may extend beyond the workplace, affecting relationships at home, especially when work consistently takes priority.

The Impact on Family Life

Family plays a critical role in a CEO's mental health, yet it is often the first area to suffer under pressure. Missed family time, limited presence, and emotional unavailability can strain relationships with spouses and children. At the same time, a supportive family can be one of the strongest protective factors against stress, providing grounding, perspective, and emotional safety.

CEOs who maintain strong family connections often report better emotional resilience, clearer thinking and healthier work-life balance. Family offers a space where leaders are valued not for their title, but for who they are as individuals.

The Toll on Health

Chronic stress in CEOs can lead to physical health issues including high blood pressure, sleep disorders, and cardiovascular problems. It can also affect decision-making, creativity, and emotional intelligence—qualities essential for effective leadership.

Strong Leaders
Start with Healthy Minds
Supportive Families.

Building Balance and Support

To protect mental health and family relationships, CEOs can:

- Set boundaries between work and home time
- Schedule non-negotiable family moments
- Communicate openly with family about pressures and expectations
- Delegate effectively to reduce overload
- Seek professional and peer support through coaching or counseling

Why This Matters for Organizations

A mentally healthy CEO with strong family support is more likely to lead with clarity, empathy, and long-term vision. Companies benefit when leaders are emotionally balanced, as it fosters healthier workplace cultures and sustainable growth.

Breaking the Stigma

Organizations are starting to recognize the importance of mental health at all levels, including top executives. Open conversations, wellness programs, and supportive environments can help CEOs and other leaders maintain balance while sustaining high performance.

CEO mental health is a critical yet often overlooked aspect of leadership. Protecting it benefits not only the individual but the organization, employees, and stakeholders. In today's fast-paced, high-pressure business world, well-being at the top is a strategic

Naivasha's Journey of Innovation

Naivasha, a lakeside town in Nakuru County, is increasingly earning recognition not only for its scenic beauty and floriculture but also as an emerging center of innovation and economic transformation. Diverse sectors from agriculture and environmental tech to enterprise empowerment and industrialization are driving change that promises sustainable growth for the region.

A striking example of environmental innovation is the work of HyaPak, a local startup that turns an invasive nuisance into opportunity. The company harvests water hyacinth from Lake Naivasha and transforms it into biodegradable products like plantable seedling bags and eco-friendly packaging. This approach tackles pollution, supports local jobs, and contributes to restoring the lake's fragile ecosystem showcasing how innovation can address environmental and economic challenges simultaneously.

Agriculture a backbone of Naivasha's economy is also witnessing forward-thinking approaches. Farms like Ngarma Farm are adopting greenhouse technology to maximize crop yields in dry conditions, producing vegetables for both local and export markets. Meanwhile, demonstration centres like Charis Farm are teaching sustainable techniques that help farmers make the most of limited land through eco-friendly practices and innovative gardening methods.

On the processing and industrial front, the Naivasha Special Economic Zone (SEZ) is transforming the local economic landscape. It has attracted multiple investors building facilities such as a modern food-processing plant that adds value to potatoes and vegetables grown by regional farmers. This investment not only creates hundreds of jobs but also helps reduce post-harvest losses by turning raw produce into products with extended shelf life.

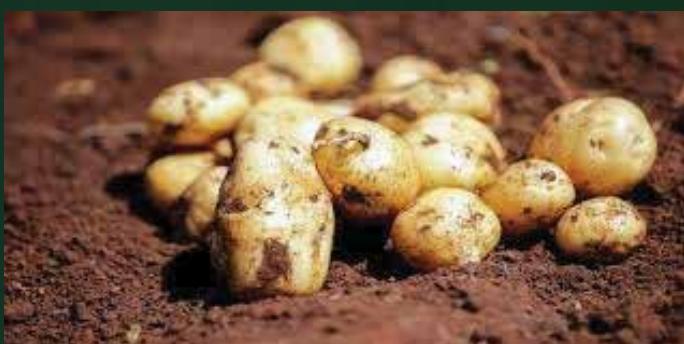

Innovation in Naivasha isn't limited to production and processing it includes waste-to-energy solutions as well. A major expansion of the Sanivation treatment plant backed by a $3.3 million investment will scale up the conversion of human waste into solid fuel briquettes. This circular economy initiative supports cleaner energy production, reduces pollution around the lake, and highlights how technology can be used to turn waste streams into valuable resources.

Education and entrepreneurship are also part of Naivasha's innovation story. Workshops and training programs, such as digital innovation sessions under the Engineering and Science Complex (ESC) project, support the creation of digital transformation roadmaps and strengthen connections between academia and industry. Skills development initiatives for youth and women supported by county empowerment programs aim to bridge gaps in access to capital, vocational skills, and digital tools, enabling locals to launch and grow their ventures.

Where Hippos and Roses Share the Shore

Lake Naivasha stands out as one of the most remarkable natural features in Kenya's Great Rift Valley. Unlike most lakes in the region, which are salty or alkaline, Lake Naivasha is freshwater, making it a rare ecological treasure. This unique characteristic supports a rich diversity of life, from fish and aquatic plants to hundreds of bird species and one of the country's most visible hippo populations.

What truly sets Lake Naivasha apart, however, is the unusual harmony between nature and industry found along its shores. It is not uncommon to see hippos grazing near the lake while, just a short distance away, modern flower farms operate at an international scale. These farms rely on the lake's freshwater to grow high-quality roses and other flowers that are exported to markets across Europe, the Middle East, and beyond.

Naivasha has grown into one of Africa's leading floriculture hubs, contributing significantly to Kenya's economy through exports, employment, and innovation in sustainable agriculture. The presence of such large-scale agribusiness alongside thriving wildlife creates a landscape unlike any other—where economic productivity and natural ecosystems exist side by side.

Beyond agriculture, the Lake Naivasha region also supports tourism, conservation efforts, and renewable energy development, reinforcing its role as a center of opportunity and growth. This rare blend of freshwater resources, wildlife, and industry makes Naivasha not just a destination, but a living example of how development and nature can coexist when carefully managed.

Lake Naivasha
remains a symbol of balance, where hippos and roses share the shoreline, and where Kenya's natural heritage meets modern enterprise.

AUTISM

IN KENYA

Understanding Autism: Early Awareness, Proper Assessment, and the Hope of Independence

Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) is a neurodevelopmental condition that affects how a person communicates, interacts socially, learns, and experiences the world around them. Autism is referred to as a "spectrum" because it presents differently in every individual, each child has unique strengths, challenges, and support needs. What remains constant is the importance of early awareness, proper assessment, and placement in environments that truly understand autism.

For many families, the first signs of autism appear in early childhood. Parents may notice that their child is not meeting expected developmental milestones or is behaving differently from other children of the same age. Common symptoms to look out for include delayed speech or lack of speech, limited eye contact, difficulty responding to their name, challenges with social interaction, and limited interest in playing with peers.

Other frequently observed signs include repetitive behaviors such as hand flapping, rocking, spinning, or lining up objects. Some children show a strong preference for routines and may become distressed when routines are disrupted. Sensory sensitivities are also common, children may react strongly to loud sounds, bright lights, certain textures, or physical touch. Feeding difficulties, sleep challenges, emotional outbursts, difficulty with attention, and delayed learning skills may also be present.

While these signs can be worrying, recognizing them early is one of the most important steps a parent can take. Proper assessment and diagnosis by trained professionals is essential. A comprehensive assessment helps determine whether a child is on the autism spectrum and identifies their specific developmental needs. Without proper assessment, children may be misunderstood, mislabeled, or placed in environments that do not support their condition.

Equally important is choosing the right learning and care environment after diagnosis. Many well-meaning parents enroll children with autism in regular schools, hoping they will "catch up" or adjust with time. Unfortunately, most regular schools are not equipped with the training, experience, or structure required to support autistic children. This can lead to mismanagement, emotional distress, behavioral challenges, academic frustration, and low self-esteem for the child. Autism requires specialized approaches, patience, and individualized programming—something only trained special needs institutions can provide effectively.

Early diagnosis and placement in the right environment allows children to access structured therapy, individualized learning programs, and consistent care. It also gives parents clarity, guidance, and peace of mind. Most importantly, it creates a foundation for teaching independence, communication, and daily life skills.

This is where Arise Hope Special Needs Care Center, based in Nakuru, plays a vital and transformative role. Arise Hope is dedicated to providing professional, compassionate, and holistic care for children with autism and other developmental challenges. The center offers both day and boarding facilities, ensuring children receive consistent support in a safe, structured, and nurturing environment.

Autism does not define a child's future. With early assessment, the right school, and professional support, children on the spectrum can learn, grow, and achieve meaningful independence. Through compassion, expertise, and a strong focus on life skills, Arise Hope Special Needs Care Center continues to bring comfort, relief, and hope to children and families—one child, one step, and one skill at a time.

At Arise Hope, children benefit from daily therapy sessions tailored to their individual needs, including communication support, behavioral therapy, and functional learning. Structured learning programs are designed to meet children at their developmental level while encouraging progress at a comfortable pace. A key focus of the center is independence training—children are guided step by step in daily care activities such as feeding, dressing, personal hygiene, communication, and social interaction. These skills not only improve confidence but also enhance long-term quality of life.

Beyond therapy and education, Arise Hope provides comfort, dignity, and emotional security. The center's trained professionals understand autism deeply and approach every child with patience, respect, and professionalism. Parents are also supported and educated, helping them continue progress at home and make informed decisions about their child's care.

As part of its commitment to community awareness and early intervention, Arise Hope Special Needs Care Center is offering a FREE autism assessment to parents who visit the center with a screenshot of this article or copy of Bizlink Magazine. This initiative is aimed at encouraging early diagnosis and connecting families to the right support without delay.
